What Are You Reading for October?!

October is a great time to start reading dark, macabre, & creepy books & short stories! Go to Goodreads Listopia & you can find several lists. Our favorite is Best Creeptober Reads. It has modern authors such as Stephen King as well as authors of classics such as Bram Stoker. The list has over 200 suggestions!

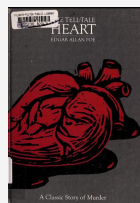

We recommend looking for classic titles such as Frankenstein and The Masque of the Red Death on Project Gutenberg. Look for more recent authors such as Stephen King on Open Library.

We have put a few of the suggested titles below to help you get started. Click on the cover for a description of the book. Click on the title to open the book and start reading! Our only advice is - Don't scare yourself so badly that you can't sleep at night!

And Then There Were None

The Tell-Tale Heart

Salem's Lot

Summer Reading Challenge Results

Thanks to everyone who participated in our Summer Reading Challenge! Our winners were Vicky Madden, Cady Wurtz, Jesse Heiser, Lydia Ward, & MaKaleigh McCarty. We read 301 books. Our top reader...Dr. Joanna Yates!

- Oct. 10-12 - Homecoming
- Oct. 13 - Columbus Day
- Oct. 16 - Ministerial Appreciation Luncheon
- Oct. 30 - Fall Festival/ Movie Night
- Oct. 31 - Halloween

Helpful Technology Hints!

Did you know that the library has acquired power strip towers that have USB ports at the top of the tower? There are 2 USB ports and 2 USB-C ports. There are 3 towers with 10ft cords and 3 towers with 6ft cords. These are great to use in the library when you are studying with your friends! Stop by & try them out!
