What Are You Reading? Read Across America!

Every March 2nd students in the U.S. celebrate Read Across America Day in honor of Dr. Seuss' birthday. You probably remember reading every Dr. Seuss book that existed in that time frame and we all loved it! However, as adults, we have stopped celebrating that day of reading. So here is a thought, what if we read across America, literally? We could read books that are set in a state!

We could read books set in every state in several ways:

- Read a book set in your home state
- Read a book from each state in alphabetical order
- Read a book from each state from the East coast to the West coast or from the West coast to the East coast
- Read a book from each state in the order that the state became a state

Click on one of the links below to find lists of books by each state. Look for books from these lists at our library, at your home library, at Project Gutenberg if it is in the public domain, and at Open Library if it is a more current title.

Need more ideas? Just Google "Book lists for different states"!

Tech Tip - Searching the Discovery System

Young Library's catalog is a Discovery system. This means that when you do a search on a topic, everything in the library has been searched. This would include print books, eBooks, print journals, electronic article databases, streaming video, and library equipment. Recently, we have put together new directions on how to use the Discovery system to help you find the best material more quickly. Follow these directions to explore how to do all of your searching in the catalog efficiently! Using the Discovery Search
